I hope that you got to go to Swaptoberfest at Rickreall last month. Many find it fun going to put faces with voices heard on the radio, get reacquainted with old friends, see all the neat stuff on the tables, and go to the ARES meeting.

For me going to Swaptoberfest is all of these things but more because going to the Rickreall area always brings back a flood of memories.

Just to the north and east of the fairgrounds but still on the same side of Rickreall Creek there was a roller skating rink that I remember being called the "Haunted Mill." As a teenager I went there a number of times with friends to spend an evening skating.

About a mile south of the fairgrounds US 99W intersects with Orrs Corner Road. It was here I got a real scare one Sunday evening many years ago. I had hitched a ride back to school in Corvallis with a friend. Near this intersection the hood on my friend's car came unlatched and flew up blocking the view of the road. It was a scary few seconds riding blind until he got the car stopped.

Other memories are associated with a number of trips I made with coworkers to Rickreall Creek itself downstream of U.S. 99W to look at stream bank erosion and scheme out a fix.

About a mile west of US 99W on Oregon 22 is the Basket Slough National Wildlife Refuge. For a number of years the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife planted pheasants here. It was a favorite place for me to go hunting with my two Springer Spaniels, Duke and Prince. For them it didn't get any better than going hunting. They would whine all the way to the hunt and if I didn't totally wear them out hunting they would whine all the way home. They've both been gone for over 10 years now but I still have many memories of hunting with them at Basket Slough. One of my favorites is the day that it dawned on Duke that he didn't know where I was. Up until this time Duke would frustrate and concern me when on occasion he would leave me and hunt by himself. It was always a big worry to me when he did this because I was not sure where his nose would lead him. He'd usually show up in an hour or so acting like we'd been separated for a few minutes. On an October day I had been hunting for an hour or so when I went through a cornfield. .

The wind was rustling the corn so loudly I could not keep track of where the dogs were. When I came out the other end of the field I discovered I only had Prince with me. As before when he did this I thought it would be easier for Duke to find me so I sat down and had a rest. After resting for awhile I decided I should go back and look for him. When I got back to the other end of the cornfield I could see him running back and forth across a grass field with his nose to the ground where we had walked earlier. The wind was in my face so initially Duke could not hear me calling for him. But when I got close enough for him to hear me he stopped, looked, and then made a beeline for me running as fast as he could. Needless to say we had a joyous reunion. That day something happened in Duke's head because after that he never let me out of his sight again when we were hunting.

DukeJULY 19, 1978 to-JANUARY 19, 1988

So when I go to Rickreall it always brings back memories. And when I go there for either Swaptoberfest in October or the Ham Fair in February I add even more to the memory bank.

Happy Thanksgiving.

NEW ARRL BANDWIDTH PETITION

The ARRL plans to file a petition with the FCC seeking the regulation of amateur subbands by bandwidth rather than by mode of emission. The principle of the petition was adopted by the ARRL Board of Directors in 2002, "At the next practical opportunity the ARRL shall petition the FCC to revise Part 97 to regulate subbands by signal bandwidth instead of by mode." The main objective is to make appropriate provision for digital modes in the HF amateur bands, while preserving amateurs' prerogatives to use the traditional modes.

The ARRL wishes to follow this pattern:

- Double-sideband AM operation is unchanged without opening the phone bands to digital and other modes of the same bandwidth.
- RTTY and data emissions are permitted by FCC rule throughout the HF "CW subbands." It is through "gentlemen's agreements" that RTTY and data signals are not heard in the parts of the band that are generally used for CW now. The proposed rules would limit bandwidth in these "CW subbands" to 200 Hz.
- Bandwidth in the existing "RTTY/data subbands" would be limited by rule to 500 Hz or 3 kHz. In these subbands phone emissions not permitted: 3650-3725, 7100-7125, 14100-14150, and 21150-21200 kHz. This is to encourage development of high-speed data communications in by preventing them from becoming de facto "expanded phone bands."
- Amateurs would not be required to be able to measure the bandwidth of their signals. Measurement would arise as a potential problem for those who try to push the edge of the envelope.
- Bandwidth limits would be eliminated in the 222-225 MHz band; the only bandwidth limitation would be that the signal must be confined within the band.
